

OUR IMHULI GLASSWARE FAMILY PORTRAIT

As tea is shared, it unites friends and families. The aroma, flavours and colours bring people together so that energies, laughter, sorrows and experiences are shared. Wisdom, knowledge and insight are encouraged and memories will last for the longest time.

Imhuli means 'family' in the isiNdebele language from Matebeleland, west of Zimbabwe. It describes the feeling we experience when we smell, taste and drink with our family, both distant and close. Each teapot is named after a family member in isiXhosa language from Eastern and Western Cape Provinces of South Africa. We trust each teapot carries its own unique energy, reflected in its name and style. When we invite others to drink tea with us, it is like extending our family.
